Good luck -

I hope this sheds some light on the situation. However - I'm not very optimistic. 😊

James Wolfe was Indian. His father was full Indian, ^{his name was Coffee} his father was a postman (he carried the mail) and was killed on his job. He & James' mother planned to marry when he was killed. She was pregnant.
She later married a man named Wolfe and James took his name. ^{new name} should be Coffee

James' mother & Betty Livingston, her sister ~~was~~ ^{were} sent from England on a boat & when they arrived in America another family took them in. The rest of their family arrived in later years & they were ~~re~~-united. They settled in Livingston, Tex. The town was named for her father.

 in 1950's they ^{went with} ~~took~~ her father to Tennessee looking for the Wolfe + Coffee connection - they talked to a man name Coffee who was the postmaster of Tazewell Tennessee. They also talked to an elderly woman named Cara Wolfe

Also it is interesting to note on History Channel an episode talked about David Crockett fought with Col. John Coffee in Indian wars in Tennessee & Alabama. John Coffee was Rebecca Coffee's grandfather - He finished his career as a Brigadier General
